The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out dramatically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime and tells Aunt Polly all about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he will be skipped school that afternoon and must work to earn the money he needs to buy a new coat. Tom is shocked and tells Aunt Polly that his coffin is still safe inside the demands of the wharf. Tom has sworn the boy is not to be disturbed until he returns. Tom goes out of the house to sit and think about what he has to do.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiterash the fence. Tim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whiterashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of money. Tim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at suppertime. He tells Aunt Polly that he has seen a boy at school that afternoon and was told he had skipped school that morning and been somewhere else. Aunt Polly is satisfied, for Tom too often is away from school and she is glad to be rid of him. Tom's half-brother, Huck, is also there, and he too is late for school. Tomkers the shantyboat, as usual, and eventually choos the overcom the way home.
