The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out dramatically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects ruefully on Tom's much loved and how she let him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime to find his Aunt Polly looking worried. She has been therapies about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom why he was skipped school that afternoon and what reassured. He told her that his clothes were still from some, but not. Tom's half-brother, Huck, had been the one to disguise him.

Tom goes out of the house in a whirlwind. He starts whistling, while wandering the streets of St. Petersburg. Tom and the new arrival continue their mischief and eventually chase the newsboys all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of ushers. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. His mother scolds him for being late, but Aunt Polly tells her to be patient, as she only skipped school that afternoon to walk over to a friend’s house. Tom sits down to a plate of cold meat and beans that his father is still serving from the day before.

Tom and his aunt are both surprised at the news of a new arrival in town. Muff Potter, the town drunk, has changed and is now respected and accepted. He has even been offered a job. Tom and his aunt are both excited to meet him.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom begs to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of mustard. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
