The novel opens with Aunt Polly searching the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects carefully on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. Tom tells Aunt Polly he skipped school that afternoon and was rowdy. She scourges his back and shows him that his clothes are still wet from being soaked in the rain. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house in the rain to give Aunt Polly a piece of his mind. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom meets Huckleberry Finn, a boy who has been orphaned and is on the run. Tom and the new arrival exchange insults and eventually chase the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "piece of paper," a kind of stimulus. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chase him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper-time. He has skipped school and has a blackened eye. He tells his nurse about his adventure. During supper, Aunt Polly tells him that he must be skipped school that afternoon and must not return home until the bell has rung and shows him that his clothes are still warm from the stove. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but still, Tom's half-brother, Mark, has sworn the boy to despatch his sister to make her return all the way home.
