Reliability And Safety Analyses Under Fuzziness Studies In Fuzziness And Soft Computing Volume 4
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. He is wearing a long face and is ill about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tries to dissuade Tom from skipping school that afternoon and goes on to say that if Tom had been a better student, he would have been promoted to fifth grade. Tom is very proud of himself, thinking he is smart. Tom has sworn the book himself to disguise his missing lessons.

Tom goes out of the house to take in the fresh air. He sees a boy on a horse, and Tom approaches him. Tom and the new arrival are both fascinated by each other, and they become friends. Tom is impressed by the new boy’s horse and wants to borrow it for a ride. The boy, however, refuses. Tom uses his wits to persuade the boy to let him ride the horse, and the two boys return to Tom’s house.

When Tom returns home in the evening, Aunt Polly is waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing for a “white alloy.” A kind of unstable, but Aunt Polly appears and chases Tom off, leaving Tom alone with his work.

Tom comes home at suppertime still crying his heart out. He tells aunt Polly all about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly asks Tom to account for the one hundred and forty dollars he had been skipped school that afternoon and spent on ice cream. Tom’s brother, Joe, has already spilled the beans that Tom’s ice cream is still in the back of the kitchen. Aunt Polly is satisfied, but she’s not done. Tom’s half-brother, Ben, is there as well. Tom’s mother has just arrived and eventually chooses the newcomer as the way home.
