Rituals Of Manhood Male Initiation In Papua New Guinea
The novel opens with Aan Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aan Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aan Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mishap and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. His clothes are torn, his hair is untidy, and he has a tale about his adventures. During supper, Aan Polly tries to find out where Tom has been, but Tom is evasive. Aan Polly realizes Tom has been skipping school that afternoon and going to see some boys who live in the next village. Tom is sent to his room, but not before Aan Polly has heard that his father is still away from home. Aan Polly is satisfied, but Tom’s half-brother, Mark, sees Tom off the street and does it himself to disguise his arrival.

Tom goes out of the house into the street, whistling. While wandering the streets of St. Pancras, Tom meets a new arrival from the country, John Swift, and eventually knows the newcomers all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aan Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aan Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. As passers-by, Tom tries to get them to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of marble. Tom almost agrees, but Aan Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his chores.
