The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sorrowfully on Tom’s misbehavior and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper-time. With bulging eyes and blackened and bloody face, he tells how he has been whipped and after having been whipped, how he has been skipped school that afternoon and went round the country. Tom’s uncle is still away from home; but his father, Tom’s half-brother, has arrived. Tom has sworn the boy himself to disgrace his name.

Tom and the new arrival arrived at Aunt Polly’s house to find Tom’s uncle has just returned. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom and his uncle are attacked by a gang of boys, and Tom manages to escape. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of needle. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his塃.
