The Wilderness Debate Rages On Continuing The Great New Wilderness Debate Illustrated Edition Paperback
the wilderness debate rages on continuing the great new wilderness
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects ruefully on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper, covered with dust and dirt, and claims to have been skipped school that afternoon and spent the time in the woods. He has run into a young man who will sell him a bottle of ink for a cent. Tom’s handwriting is still assez frêle, but Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom is sent to the corner of the street to wash his face and hands, which he does with a man’s water and soap. He then goes to the new arrival on the street, who is a sailor, and eventually chases the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of whistle. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
